

Matthew Fergusson-Stewart is passionate about whisky, particularly Single Malt Scotch Whisky. Made from just the same three basic ingredients, malted barley, water and yeast, Single Malt whisky has the greatest diversity of flavour and aroma characteristics of any spirit.

Over the last decade, Matthew has been the State Manager of The Scotch Malt Whisky Society in Western Australia, has been the creator and Director of Stewart's Whisky Consultancy, has managed a bar with Southeast Asia's largest whisky selection and has created an interactive website to help people choose a single malt whisky they will like, based on their flavour preferences. He is also the author of two authoritative papers on chill-filtration, published by the prestigious Malt Maniacs.

As an experienced whisky educator, Matthew enjoys nothing more than talking to people about The Water of Life, and maybe even sharing a dram or two.